The crime of slavery consisted in the fact, that irrespective of color or blood, upon the legal principle partus sequitur ventrem - the child follows the condition of the mother - it converted millions of the American people into chattels personal to be bought, sold, or inherited as property. The outrage it inflicted on humanity was as great as the insult it offered to God who is the Father of us all. The National Constitution limited the slave trade on the coast of Africa to the year 1808, but the Inter-State slave trade was not prohibited, and men, women and children, of all ages and complexions, being in law only property, were exposed in the marketplace to all the incidents of property. Michael Eeece, who died in California last year worth thirteen millions, began his fortune by keeping three slave shambles in as many Southern cities - Washington, Baltimore and Richmond, where he traded in the flesh of Christians as the Christians had...
