O Theon! when first I abandon d thee here, Hope painted me visions of pleasure; Far different my fate from my dreams--I have found That hope is a faithless deceiver. And tell me, my Theon, has such been thy fate, For such doth thy visage betoken? Have sorrow and sadness intruded on thee, And thy peaceful, domestic penates V Theon groan d in his spirit, and look d to the grave, These, these are the silent recorders, If God lent us life to be wasted in joy--Ah! life is the sister of sorrow. O no! I complain not of Zeus decrees, For life and the world beam with beauty; But bliss that is fleeting, and dreams that are vain, I chase not for earthly enjoyment. What time can create, and what time can destroy, Why call we...
