Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Journal of Applied Psychology, 1920, Vol. 2 The current interest and activity of psychologists in devising and applying tests of special fitness for various vocations required in military operations, may justify a report upon an examination in the psychological laboratory of a man of expert ability as a marksman. Mr. William F. Blasse, of San Francisco, long known as an exceptional marksman, scored the world s record on the 200 yard range, free off-hand shooting, 100 shots consecutively, on September 22, 1916. Using the King Target, Mr. Blasse scored 223 points out of a possible 300 which would have required each of the 100 shots to have been placed within one and one-half inches of the center of the target. Some idea of the accuracy of Mr. Blasse s shooting is indicated by a detailed score; of the 100 shots, 38 scored red flags (within 1.5 inches from the center), 47 blue flags (3 inches from center) and 15 white flags (6 inches from center). The average distance of the 100 shots from center would be about 2.3 inches. Thus at a distance of 200 yards, shooting without a rest, Mr. Blasse would find a man s head an easy mark. Taken into the University of California laboratory, Mr. Blasse gladly submitted to an experimental examination in an effort to determine in what respects his superiority over the marksmen of average or inferior ability was to be found. From many tests tried, only those which possess some special significance are mentioned. As a control group, 10 students in the laboratory consented to go through the same series of tests.
